

How do I know if home health is right for me?

Your condition is unique – and so is your treatment plan.

Home health professionals are specially trained to deliver high-quality care that helps patients recover and regain strength, health, and independence.

Our professional nurses, therapists, and social workers treat a wide range of medical conditions, allowing you to rest and recover in the comfort of home.

We can teach you to better understand your disease or condition, and how to manage things like medications and nutrition for the best quality of life. A skilled team of home health clinicians will be your on-site healthcare champion – available 24/7 to address whatever symptoms or concerns you may encounter.

The emotional support, camaraderie, and expertise of our clinicians helps reassure you and your family as you progress through recovery or manage your chronic condition.

With home health, you can trust that your doctor's plan of care will be followed thoroughly and accurately, and that you will receive the high-quality, compassionate care you deserve.

Home health can help if you or a family member:

- Has a new diagnosis or an exacerbation of an existing diagnosis
- Has a new medication
- Requires teaching on a disease process or medication
- Is at risk for or experiencing complications requiring labs
- Requires other skilled nursing services (wound care, teaching, observation, and assessment)
- Requires frequent follow-up from a physician's office
- Has frequent re-hospitalizations
- Exhibits behaviors that indicate risk for falls
- Needs physical therapy, occupational therapy, speech therapy, or medical social services

If any of the above indicators apply to your situation, home health might be the answer.
